SCENARIO

After retirement, Mr. Krishnan received a sizeable corpus from his Provident Fund, Gratuity, and Leave Encashment, etc. Initially, he considered placing the amount in Government Saving Schemes and Fixed Deposits (FDs) for monthly/quarterly interest. However, he was concerned about: FD and Government Scheme interest being fully taxable at his slab rate, thereby adding to his pension income and tax burden.

Interest rates changing over time, creating reinvestment challenges in a declining rate scenario.

WHAT HE CHOSE

With guidance from his Mutual Fund Distributor (MFD), Mr. Krishnan explored a Systematic Withdrawal Plan (SWP) through a Hybrid Multi-Asset Mutual Fund. He allocated a major portion of his retirement corpus into the fund. He set up a fixed monthly withdrawal through SWP to cover his expenses.

OUTCOME

He received a steady monthly cash flow comparable to traditional options. In an SWP, only the gains portion of each withdrawal is taxable, not the full amount — this potentially offered him more tax efficiency compared to FD interest His invested corpus remained deployed in the market, with scope for potential growth depending on performance and market conditions.
