SIP IN SMALL CAP FUNDS

Today's large caps were yesterday's small caps. Many of today's small caps shall become tomorrow's large caps. A company that is ranked below the top 250 companies as per market capitalization is known as a small cap company. While several world economies are facing growth challenges, India remains a bright spot for investments. Reports from prominent economists suggest India's GDP to double in the next 10 year. Amid this growth potential, small cap companies may benefit the most.

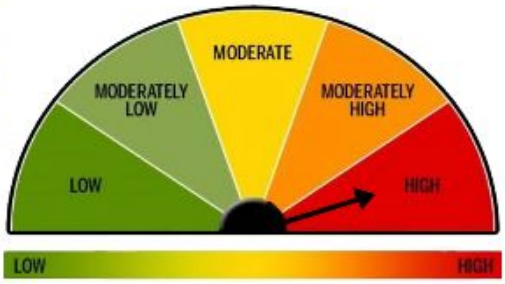

PROPOSAL IN BRIEF

A small cap equity mutual fund is a basket of several small cap companies handpicked by expert fund managers. Investing in a small cap fund through the SIP route can yield good rewards over the long term.

RISK FACTOR

Small cap stocks are considered to be more risky as compared to mid caps or large caps. While they may have strong prospect of growing faster, they are also susceptible to higher risk due to being small in size, economies of scale not in their favor, and competition with bigger players. Investing in a basket of small cap companies (through the mutual fund route) can be a better choice as compared to individual stocks. The time horizon should be longer while considering investment in a small cap equity fund.
